Bishop Lindsay Jones	Church of Christ (Holiness) USA Partnership (Chesapeake, VA)	(757) 625-0242

Bishop Lindsay E. Jones was hired by New Church Specialties in 2005 to deliver coaching & consulting services to the Church of Christ (Holiness) USA. The COCHUSA is an African-American holiness denomination of 155 churches throughout the United States. During his almost 20 years of pastoring, he has specialized in refocusing and revitalizing established churches. Each local church experienced renewed vision, vitality and growth. Or, the ministry was successfully transitioned at foundational levels, to thrive under future leadership.

In addition to pastoring, he is a diocese Presiding Bishop, overseeing the denomination's churches in the eastern region of the nation. During his 10-year tenure, he has led that judicatory to be one of the fastest growing dioceses in the denomination; emphasizing "renewal of existing churches and the starting of new churches." Nationally, he also serves the denomination as First Vice-President; and is National Coordinator of its church growth and church health multiplication efforts.

A gifted speaker, strategic thinker, consultant and presenter, Bishop Jones has worked with a number of different denominations as a coach and consultant, as well as with several business organizations. He has received bachelor's and master's degrees in Business Administration. He subsequently earned his Masters of Arts in Religion and Urban Ministry from Trinity Evangelical Divinity School, Deerfield, IL.

He and his wife, the former Santa Clara Conerly, make their home in Chesapeake, Virginia. They have three children: Landon, Lowell and Lanniece.
